The idea is to introduce a new self food ordering concept where customers place their orders using kiosks exclusively. Each touchscreen will provide access to a variety of their favourite revisited street kitchen.

The venue is optimized for take away, collect and go but also delivery. No tables for on-site consumption however a large space for waiting orders. The aim is to offer a new way of consuming that is in tune with the times. By streamlining the ordering process while guaranteeing fast, high-quality, affordable meals for middle-class workers or students looking to optimize their time or hunger. Eezeat is envisioned as a new way of ordering food. In the same way as drive-thru, online sites...
